

Migratuse Reimagined
Call for Community Fellows

Application Opens: August 17, 2024
Application Closes: September 8, 2024, at Midnight.

For over twenty years, Wideman Davis Dance's \(WDD\) founding partners and co-directors, Tanya Wideman-Davis and Thaddeus Davis, have created dance performances and educational projects that celebrate Black experiences and histories. Migratuse Reimagined, our current project, brings us to Columbia, S.C., for 18 weeks over the next 12 months. (The 18 weeks will be divided into three six-week periods. Phase One runs from July 14 to August 25, 2024.) The Migratuse Reimagined Residency is a site-specific, artistic project that explores the topics of memorialization, community, and collective memory through the histories of our residency cities. We will hold open conversations, film screenings, community meetings, and live performances to engage the Columbia, S.C. community around these topics.

WDD invites African American artists, creators, makers, craftspeople, and community builders to partner with us during the final two phases (Phase Two: October 6 to November 17, 2024, and Phase Three: February 9 to March 23, 2024) of our Columbia residency. Community Fellows will participate in community events and contribute a final exhibition comprising each fellow's work. Ten creators will receive $5,000.00 (in three installments) to complete the work and support your practice. We are open to funding a range of projects, including but not limited to:

- Dance
- Painting
- Photography
